

EDUCATION IS THE KEY

Violence against women whatever its nature has the family as the main frame.

Abuse is mostly exercised by a man against a woman. It has specific causes: the minds of men wanting to dominate women.

The most visible features of abuse are beating and killing, these facts transcend the sphere of the couple. However, the psychological abuse maintained overtime decreases women's confidence and it is equally damaging. Unfortunately, 35% of women and girls globally experience some form of physical and / or sexual violence in their life time, with up to seven in ten women facing this abuse in some countries.

The issue of violence against women is often dealt with as individual and isolated cases. Abusers suffer from a number of disorders that lead them to abuse women. If we look at the problem in this way, we will not be able to deal with it as a social problem. However, from the point of view of a feminist, male violence is perceived as a mechanism of social control that maintains the subordination of women.

As far as I'm concerned children's education is the key. They should learn to pull their weight around the house. Besides, they should learn to control their feelings and emotions. On the other hand, women should be careful about what partner they choose. Not all men respect women and treat them properly, and, of course, give the women enough qualification to be independent.
